information and techniques that will assist you in your goals for attracting women, but it will also require a significant amount of practice on your part as you learn to integrate these ideas and concepts into your day-to-day interactions.

When I began the game of attracting women years ago as a young man, I was not overly successful in my conquests. I experienced the usual rebuffs, the classic denials, the embarrassing slams and the humiliating brush-offs. I was going about it all wrong, just jumping in and doing the best that I could trying to interact with these beautiful and mysterious creatures. It wasn't until I entered college that I began to actually study the interactions between men and women on a deeper level to observe the subtleties that went on just below the surface. It was a fascinating area of study and I found myself experimenting in many different social settings. Over time, I began to notice patterns and recurring themes that led me to believe there was a code at play here, which I set out to crack once and for all.

Decades later, there is still much to learn in regards to the mysteries of the female, but by relying on certain behavioral patterns and developing a sort of recipe that allowed me to achieve specific results again and again, I have been able to enjoy countless rich and rewarding interactions with women that otherwise would not have happened if left to my own devices and ignorance. If you are reading this book, it is safe to say that you are ready and willing to take your understanding of your own body language to a deeper level, as well as to learn more about how body language dictates the behavior of the women around you. Like anything new that you are learning, to fully access the effectiveness of these concepts you will need to practice and will most likely stumble upon the way. Don't allow yourself to be discouraged if at first you don't succeed. Like most things in life, practice is the key element to developing your skills and in no time you will be enjoying amazing results with women. I wish you the best of luck on your journey to achieving your goals in the dating world and I am confident that you will greatly enjoy the power and excitement of being an "Attraction Magnet."
